NO "WHITEWASHING" TO BE ALLOWED IN
STEPHENSON PROBE

Chairman Heyburn Stated Today That Committee Owed It to Senator to Bring Out All Possible Facts.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 17.—That the Stephenson investigation shall not be open to the whitewashing charges brought against the first Lorimer investigation was the indirect declaration of Chairman Heyburn at the Stephenson hearing today.

C. E. Littlefield, attorney for Stephenson, objected to putting in the record the opinions of S. M. Marsh of Louisville, chairman of the committee that first investigated the case, but the committee decided to receive it, although not as testimony. Referring to the Lorimer case, although not by name, Chairman Heyburn declared it would be unfair to the senator not to bring all the facts possible before it. The committee declared it was not a court but simply an inquiry body.

Other witnesses called to be sworn today were R. J. Shields, Superior, also mentioned in the Lorimer case and who again failed to appear.

Three witnesses testified: Lester Filton of Chicago told of the attempt to have him run for the legislature during the Stephenson primary; R. S. Cowie, of Whitehall, of spending $150 of Stephenson money, and former Senator Marsh cited cases of corrupt electioneering as he viewed it. He believed over half of the Stephenson money was spent corruptly.

The secret service men are said to have evidence that the responsible person has fled to the mountains, where he is hiding.

The authorities assert there is a complete evidence of a plot in the finding of twenty-one sticks under a long bridge and further on eighteen more sticks of the deadly stuff. A fuse was arranged on each charge enough to have blown the train to bits.

Starts For East.

A forty-five hour jump confronted him from Los Angeles to Little Rock. A twenty minute stop-over at Ogden will be the only break in his long trip. From Montana he will begin his long journey across the North-west and Lake states to the East and home.

RESIDENTS TO VOTE ON CITY OWNERSHIP OF THE WATERWORKS

VOTERS WILL BE CALLED UPON TO DECIDE MATTER AT SPECIAL ELECTION, FOLLOWING COUNCIL'S ACTION.

HIT AT THE FIRE POLICE

Money Appropriated For Support of Citizens' Organization Is Withdrawn—Street Matters Taken Up at Council Meeting.

Municipal ownership of the waterworks will be a proposal put before Janesville voters for their approval or disapproval at a special election in consequence of the action of the common council last night, approving the motion of Alderman Sheridan directing the city attorney to prepare the necessary papers preliminary to the vote.

The motion of Alderman Sheridan was made following a recommendation made by Mayor Nichols, that the question of municipal ownership of the Janesville waterworks be submitted to popular vote.

Mayor Nichols announced that he had been in correspondence with the mayors and presidents of several cities which owned their waterworks and read to the council the letters he had received from Rockford, Kenosha, and La Crosse, all of which were strong endorsements of municipal ownership.

The much mooted question of the support of the fire police patrol, left over from the last meeting in order that the city attorney might file an opinion on the contested legal points, was again brought up and though no final action was taken, a motion was made that the $1000 appropriated for the upkeep of the patrol be transferred to the Fire and Water fund and that the name of Ben Barriago, driver of the patrol wagon, be dropped from the pay roll.

On motion of Alderman Cannell, action on the matter was postponed until the next meeting in order that Alderman Barriago, who is a member of the patrol, who was absent from the meeting, might be heard. City Attorney Maxfield gave it as his opinion that the appropriation of $1,000 for the fire police patrol, made at the last meeting, was clearly within their authority, and that the company is plainly restrained from placing any man on the city pay roll who is a member of the city fire department.

Ben Barriago, or any other man, could not be made a member of the fire department without being appointed with the approval of the civil service board.

The objection made to the appropriation for the fire police, is that the driver of the patrol, Ben Barriago, is under the control of the chief of the fire department, and that the fire department is entirely independent of other bureaus.

Failure to extend the patrol the support asked for will practically necessitate its abandonment and dissolution. Its sole source of income would be the half of one per cent on fire insurance premiums collected in the city, which is far from being adequate.

Doubt as to the necessity of the fire police and the opinion that it has proved of very little service in Janesville were also among the grounds of opposition to an appropriation for their support voiced by certain aldermen.

Fire Chief Klein was called upon to state his opinion and though he acknowledged that the fire police had once been a strong, active and valuable organization in Janesville, they were now weak and rendering little or no service. Only three members had responded at the fire yesterday afternoon.

The communication of the Wisconsin Fire Prevention association was read at length by the city clerk and on recommendation of the mayor City Attorney Maxfield was directed to enforce the ordinances against those mentioned as violators.

The most heated and spirited discussion of the meeting was provoked by the order of Alderman Evans that Washington street from Mineral Pt. avenue to the end of the street be repaved with gravel and rubble.

Alderman Sheridan and Duffin voiced firm protests against putting the ward at expense for the repaving of this street when the Center street improvement had been held up for a year.

Alderman Sheridan questioned the legality of the work. Atty. Maxfield said that repairs could be made if the street was not put up to grade and this statement was affirmed by City Engineer Kerch. Alderman Sheridan contended that repairs could not be made without putting the street up to grade.

In this he was supported by Alderman Duffin, who thought it unfair that the Center Ave. residents be forced to pay for their own paving when those on Washington avenue would get theirs without cost.

"We will have to fix that street up this fall so that we can bury our dead this winter," retorted Alderman Evans. "If it is not fixed it will have to close up, for it is practically impassable. It is hazardous to persons attempting to pass through that street."

The matter was finally laid over on the motion of Alderman Sheridan so that a correct and final order might be laid before the council.

Atty. Malcolm O. Mead was engaged as counsel to assist City Atty. Maxfield in the trial of the P. C. Bureau injunction suit against the city in the matter of the paving of Center street.

The council directed the street commissioner to secure the necessary materials and assistance for the erection of a combined drinking fountain and horse trough at the corner of Milwaukee and Milton avenues, designs and specifications for the same having been already approved.

An extension of time from Sept. 1, 1911 to October 1, 1912, was granted to the Central States Bridge Co. for the construction of the Fourth avenue bridge.

The recommendation of a committee of the board of education that the mayor be directed to borrow the sum of $1000 and place to the credit of the school fund for defraying current expenses was approved without dissent. This amount is to be used until the tax levy becomes available. A communication was presented by Alderman Apple, giving the information that John Brown was the oldest man in the police force, having taken his examination before the board in May, 1887. Questions as to the proper appointment and qualifications of Officer Brown were thus laid to rest.

The bonds and securities of Rink & Schmel, successful bidders for the Academy street paving, were reported satisfactory and the street assessment committee's report on the matter accepted. Order was given the street commissioner to flush the sanitary sewers wherever necessary.

RELATIVES KILLED IN AUSTIN FLOOD

L. M. Nelson of This City Received Word That Nephew and Wife Met Death, and Property Destroyed.

L. M. Nelson received word this morning from a sister residing near Austin, Pa., that his nephew, William Nelson, and his wife, met death in the flood which destroyed the town several weeks ago. One daughter narrowly escaped death by desperately clinging to some of the drifting debris and was rescued. She is still in a critical condition from the terrible experience and it is doubted whether she will recover. Another daughter was away at school at the time, but when she was called home the shock was sufficient to cause a severe prostration from which she has not recovered.

Three stores which were owned by Mr. Nelson in Austin were completely destroyed and washed away.

HOG CHOLERA RAGES ON FARMS NEAR CITY

MANY ANIMALS ON VARIOUS FARMS ARE AFFLICTED WITH DISEASE WHICH IS SPREADING.

STATE WILL GIVE AID

Experiment Has Already Been Made in Vaccination by State Expert and Demonstration Meeting Is Planned.

Hundreds of hogs on a number of farms near Janesville are seriously afflicted with hog cholera, and many animals are reported dying daily. As a result of the alarming spread of the disease several farmers have appealed to the state college of agriculture for aid in checking the contagion, and yesterday H. A. Beach, a veterinarian connected with the state school, paid his second visit to this city for the purpose of vaccinating several animals and placing them in a diseased herd belonging to a prominent breeder.

According to Mr. Beach the state college of agriculture is now planning to conduct a demonstration meeting for the farmers at some central place in the near future, in order to instruct as to the best methods of fighting the disease, and also to demonstrate the use of cholera vaccine. This is applied merely as a preventative and not as a cure. It has been found to be very effective in checking the disease where it has been given a thorough trial. The merits of the vaccination method will be demonstrated at the meeting, a date for which has not as yet been selected.

An alarming state of affairs which attends this disease aside from the fact of the heavy losses of valuable breeding and butcher stock, is also the fact that many animals showing slight symptoms of cholera have been rushed to market and placed on sale. It is stated that many carloads have been shipped from the local stock yards within the past week, all of the animals, of course, selling at the very lowest figures. As a means of spreading the disease, there could be nothing more effective, according to local veterinarians.

The districts directly east and west of the city are given as the sections most seriously afflicted—the most acute case of the disease being confined, perhaps, to about a dozen or fifteen farms. With the tendency of the disease to spread rapidly, however, the fact that there are even so many farms affected, imperils, practically, every farm in the surrounding country.

According to Dr. J. Perschkeholder of this city, hog cholera should be quarantined and each case segregated, as closely as possible in order to prevent the spread of the disease. He especially deprecated the tendency to sell half sick animals to market and declared that farmers and breeders should take greater care in feeding the animals at this time of the year. In his opinion one of the chief reasons that the disease is rampant at present was that farmers have fed soft, now corn in too great quantities, and had not provided enough green pasture, or charcoal or a lot large enough for the animals to receive the benefit of exercise. Farmers who have not applied the ordinary sanitary and preventative measures against the disease, are urged to do all they can at once, and those who have animals that are sick, are asked to keep them confined to prevent spread.

Whatever can be done on the part of the state or local veterinarians will be welcomed by the breeders in this locality.

NEW BRIDGE WILL BE FINISHED THIS FALL

Piers Nearly Completed and One Set of Girders Already in Position. Second Being Unloaded.

Work on the Racine street bridge is being rushed to completion by the Central States Bridge company, who have charge of the construction, in order that it may be ready for use before winter sets in. Four of the piers have been set and one pair of the steel girders are in position, while another pair are being taken from the flat cars and preparations made to start work on the second span immediately.

In construction this bridge is very similar to the Court street bridge, the only difference being that while the latter has the floor on the top of the girders the former has the road bed on a level with the top of the piers and the girders form the railing and the road bed lies between them. One of the four pairs of sixty-six-foot girders have been put in place on the west side. There will be four spans of sixty-six feet, each one having already been laid. In width the bridge will be several yards less than the Court street bridge.

When completed it will make a great difference to the people living on each side of the river, enabling the school attendance in the wards to be increased up to a much better division besides bringing the east and west sides of the city into closer proximity, and its construction is being watched with a great deal of interest.

STUDENTS WEAK IN ARITHMETIC WORK

However, Local High School Scholars Will Attempt to Disprove Charges So Often Made.

"High school students cannot solve problems in arithmetic, dealing with percentages, fractions and interest." This is the charge brought against the students of the high school by local business men, as stated by Prof. H. C. Buell in an address to the students Monday morning.

However, the Janesville school is not the only school which is thus charged. Ex-Governor Hoard has repeatedly stated that he had to teach the students of his home school, Ft. Atkinson, who were in his employment, how to cast up dividends. All over the country mutterings against the training of high school students in arithmetic may be heard.

Recently complaints have come to Supr. Buell and unless they can be proved false, they will reflect on the training given the students and public schools of the city.

Professor Buell appealed to the student body to aid him in refuting this charge. In order to accomplish this and the students will be tested with several problems which will involve all the principles of arithmetic in which it is claimed they are weak. This means that the local students will prepare to disprove this charge and this morning turned out work in

CITY OWNERSHIP.

The common council, recognizing the fact that more or less sentiment prevails in favor of the city buying the water works plant, voted last evening to submit the question to the people in a special election to be held for that purpose. This was a wise thing to do, for the question is too important to be decided in any other way.

The late ruling of the State Commission increases the cost to the city for water used as fire protection and dispenses with free drinking fountains and free water in school and public buildings, and while prices are reduced to some extent, to private consumers, increased taxation will more than absorb the savings.

One of the strong objections made against municipal ownership of public utilities is that politics enters so largely into city government that it will be difficult to keep it out of the management of a public service corporation.

Another objection advanced is that the average common council is not a good custodian of business, and not as competent to handle a large investment as a private company.

These objections are both well founded, and will hold good until the people wake up to the fact that the common council plan of government is a business proposition, and free from political entanglements.

The argument used in favor of city ownership is cheaper water and better service, but the fact that depreciation is constantly going on, and extensions and improvements in constant demand, is sometimes overlooked, to say nothing about interest on the investment and the principal which sooner or later must be paid.

Public ownership of public utilities is thrust upon just a thing of so-called progress, and the theory offers so many utopian prospects that it is flattering and growing in popularity all over the country. If it is a good thing to own the water company, why wouldn't it be good to own the lighting plant and furnish the city with cheaper power and better lights and more of them? And why not buy the street railway, and extend the lines to accommodate more people? There is no limit to what might be done if the city wants to engage in private business.

The question of buying the water works is a vital question, which merits full and free discussion. It is of so much importance that the people should be enlightened concerning it, and the Gazette invites, through its columns, a free discussion of the subject. The will of the people is supreme, but it should be influenced by intelligent thought and unbiased opinion.

RAILROADS AND THE FARMER.

It is interesting to know that the railroads are co-operating with the farmers of the country, and that good results are being obtained. This spirit may be prompted by selfishness, but it is commendable, nevertheless, and indicates that mutual dependency is recognized. The "World's Work" thus discusses the question:

"It is to the interest of the railroads that the farm-lands all over the country should yield to the utmost, and they spare no expense of money or of brains to help the farmer do his best. Last summer eager audiences all over the country listened to the preaching of better methods and larger crops. Dozens of special trains traveled through the agricultural regions disseminating information. The breakfast bacon special was run to encourage the Iowa farmers to raise more hogs to take advantage of the high price of bacon. The Cotton Belt Route southwest from St. Louis ran the 'Squealer Special' to prove to the Arkansas and Panhandle farmers the money-making advantage of blooded hogs over the 'razor-back' variety."

"Down the Mississippi Valley the Illinois Central sent the 'Hill Weevil Special' to conduct a campaign against that pest. The Harriman lines have six trains operating in California every year. This year they were visited by more than 75,000 people. Better farming specialists run in practically every state south of the Ohio and Potomac and west of the Missouri. The New York Central also had two in operation in New York."

SOME ALARMING FIGURES.

"How many citizens know that for fourteen years the Canadian government has been canvassing the United States for settlers? The emigration has steadily increased from 2,412 persons in 1897 to 103,798 in 1910. Mr. J. W. White, the inspector of United States agencies writes: 'The value of the immigration from the United States can scarcely be given in figures, although if this were to be considered, I believe it would be largely in excess of the $25,000,000 placed upon it by the Department. I have met many cases where the individual took with him, as much as $40,000 or $50,000, and hundreds have gone to Canada whose bank account ran well into the thousands.'"

This paragraph from an exchange is significant, not only because of the number of American farmers who have left the country, but because of what they represent in wealth. The tide of immigration at Castle Garden continues to flow, in a steady stream, but the loss of 100,000 American citizens means more than the adoption of many times that number.

When President Taft returns to Washington he will find that all sorts of things have happened during his absence, and not the least important a full-fledged competitor for his seat in the White House. The progressive convention in Chicago was noted for enthusiasm, and the platform adopted is a vote-getter. Many things may happen between now and next June, but the president will discover that the man camping on his trail is a stayer, and that his admirers are shouters by the clock.

The action of the common council last night, on the fire police, practically legislates that old organization out of existence, as the twenty business men comprising the company will hardly feel warranted in financing the organization. With improved equipment the fire department regard the fire police as a fifth wheel and unnecessary. Under the circumstances the members of the old company will doubtless retire without regret.

Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey accused President Taft of being a trimmer, and says that one day he advocates the enforcement of the anti-trust law, and the next day fears that business is being disturbed by too much legislation. Wilson is evidently making a bid for popular support.

"The banks of 'suffering' Kansas show a bank balance of close to $100,000,000. Ten years ago the principal asset of the state was a carload of farm mortgages. Today the automobile is the popular vehicle in the country. Prosperity has done much for Kansas."

When Colonel Roosevelt comes down off the fence on which side will he alight? He is the man who named his successor, but he has not been a very loyal supporter of his choice. The people are anxious to know how he will turn up in the next campaign.

The president's train was saved from dynamite wreck near Los Angeles, last night, by the vigilance of a watchman. The country has its full quota of undesirable citizens.

In the good time coming competition will again be the life of trade, and the manufacturer will no longer be able to fix the retail price of goods.

SIGNS.

When the zephyrs blow
And the posies grow
And their fragrance perfumes the air;
When the future's bright
And all nature's right
And the weather is warm and fair;
When there's naught of strife
And pure joy is life
And the whole works is to the good;
When the birdies sing
And most everything
Is behaving just as it should;
When folks wear a smile,
OK a happy style
And refuse to reduce the same,
Even by an inch
It's a moral clinch
That the home team has won a game.

When the clouds hang low
And the north winds blow
And all nature seems sad and drear;
When there's nothing right
In the mortal sight
And the end of the world seems near;
When the earth is brown
Years a gloomy frown
When the pessimists hold full sway;
When you're good and blue
Through and through and through
And you can't drive Bull Caro away;
When you're mighty sore
And your life's a bore
And the whole world seems awful tame;
You can safely bet
All that you can get
That the home team has dropped a game.

There is a telegram at the railroad depot which came a week ago last Thursday for Uncle Ezra Tutts, and same is requested to call for it when he drives to town. Agent Renfrow Purdy is very mysterious about it and says somebody is down, but claims the regulations won't allow him to reveal identity of the late defunct. Mr. Spink has got mixed up with the government. He thrashed a rural from delivery man because the latter said it had to put a two cent stamp on a letter he was sending. It says it is a rural free delivery and dog bite his whiskers if he is going to pay a cent for sending a mail.

Old Man Sperry died last week and went to the great beyond after reading this paper for nothing nineteen years. He will probably not find much of a change in the great beyond as he had for twenty-seven years held the lucrative position of fireman at Gil-Fritchard's sawmill down on Swinney Creek.

Ezra Briggs' brindle tried to swindle a sythe and snath last week and feels quite cut up about it at this writing. Hank Taskins and Eli Hagline have returned from frolics on Swinney Creek. Old Lado Tubbs asked Hank what he was going to do with the frogs, and Hank said he was thinking of selling them to the railroad company that runs through our midst. Hank is quite comical sometimes. He ought to be written for some patent medicine ad. There will be a show to the opy house three weeks from next Thursday night and polio society is on the qui viv. IF.

If Granchy had not taken the wrong road there would have been no victory of the allies over Napoleon at Waterloo and the map of Europe would be different.

If Charles I. had not signed an order to prohibit a shipload of farmers from going to America he might not have lost his head. Cromwell and Pym and Hampden—three signers of his death warrant—were to have gone on that ship.

If a nameless aid on the staff of General Thomas at the battle of Chickamauga had investigated what he thought was a gap in the Union line the Confederates would not have poured through the real gap, which was made by the movement ordered by Rosecrans, because of the careless aid's report, changing an almost certain victory to disaster.

If hundreds of historical incidents might be cited to show how the pervasiveness of a trifle has enormously changed the face of human affairs.

If you can look back over your own experience in life and say, "If so and so had not happened—"

And that "if" at the time seemed but a trivial thing.

Great events have turned on such a trifle as the cackling of the geese that saved Rome. Personal events may be traced to such small things as the sneeze of a child, the smile of a woman, five minutes' delay, the missing of a train—links in the chain of events that have changed the course of a life.

Are there, indeed, any really little things in human affairs? Each trifle may be correlated with some other trifle which, in its turn, is related closely with human destiny.

If in the realm of business it is an adage that "trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle."

It is so of morals. The chain of individual life is composed of three great links—habit, character, destiny. And a chain is no stronger than any of its links.

If your habits are good so will your character be. If your character is good so will be your destiny.

OF IMPORTANCE TO INFANTS AND THEIR MOTHERS

Every mother at some time has purchased lime water. Very few know anything about its quality. Lime water is one of the cheapest things sold in a drug store. Generally little care is taken to prepare or take care of it.

The ordinary way of making it is to obtain a chunk of lime, throw it into a large jug filled with water, shake occasionally, and sell the clear liquid. The little babies are entitled to better thought. Lime water is a valuable infants' remedy for indigestion, sour stomach and as a food with milk and milk sugar. Mr. Pfenning, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares lime water by adding chemically pure calcium oxide in the exact proportion to sterilized water. It is then stored in clean glass bottles. You will always find it full strength, not contaminated by dust and dirt as lime in a lumber yard is bound to be.

It is those things that make the difference in good drugs and the best drugs. Chemically pure lime water, 150 a pint. Highest purity sugar milk 35c a pound. Eagle condensed milk, 3 cans 50c. Your baby should have the advantage of our good lime water and other drugs. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets. The Drug Store that makes a specialty of Drugs.

Blonde Women's Advantage. "Blonde women have their photographs taken just about twice as often in the long run as brunettes," remarked a photographer. "The reason is easy; blondes take better pictures than brunettes. The lighting effects are better when the subject is a blonde. A blonde girl may get a photograph that will flatter her, where one of a brunette, taken under the same conditions, will not even do her justice."

Self-Control Always Needed. There is nothing you need to cultivate so much as self-control. "Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control. These three alone lead life to sovereign power." Plato says: "The first and best victory is for a man to conquer himself, and without that he is naught but the veriest slave." Carlyle says: "The king is the man who can."

No Pay. "I understand that lecture on the United States mail wagon will not require a paid entrance fee." "No, out of compliment to his audience, probably, the orator's is a free delivery."

STORM ON MONDAY CLOGS THE SEWERS THROUGHOUT CITY

Street Commissioner Wilkins Had Busy Time Today Cleaning Out
The Overflow.
Street Commissioner Dan Wilkins was a busy man today and his force of thirty men had all they could do to clear away the wreckage of Monday's storm. The leaves and refuse allowed to accumulate in the residence portion of the city, swept down the hills and clogged the sewers in the down town district. At Park and South Second streets and entire railway tie was found half way through a sewer and was pulled out with difficulty. Another bad place was Pleasant and River streets. Mr. Wilkins is anxious to have citizens clean up their refuse and gutters of leaves to relieve the street department as much as possible.

The other party named in the complaint is Nora Hansen, and the alleged crime was committed November

Ferrell was postponed until ten o'clock tomorrow. His bail was set at $500, and it is expected that it will be fur-

ELMER CROOK WAS HEIR TO PROPERTY

Father Which Will Soon be Settled—Edgerton News.

Edgerton, Oct. 17.—Elmer Crook, who was buried here yesterday, his death occurring Sept. 3, last, at Tacoma, Wash., was heir to an estate of which his portion was about $5,000. His father, the late Walter Crook, died some ten years ago and the will he left the value of real and personal property be given as $15,000, the same to be equally divided between the two sons, Elmer and Herschel Crook, and a sister, Mrs. N. C. Olson. The estate has been pending settlement in the Dane county probate court for the past eight or nine years on account of the many years of absence of Elmer.

With the death it is now made possible of a speedy settlement and the surviving brother and sister will each share alike of the amount bequeathed their deceased brother.

ROONEY BOYS GIVE CONCERT TONIGHT

Benefit for Janesville Boy Scouts in Shape of Excellent Concert at Myers Theatre.

Everything is in readiness for the concert which will be given by "Rooney's Boys" at the Myers Theatre this evening as a benefit for the Janesville Boy Scouts. There has been a large sale already and it is expected that the attendance will be exceptionally large. Following is an interesting account of the outing which Mr. Rooney gives his troop of boy musicians each summer:

Not many boys have such an outing as Mr. Rooney gives those of his concert company at the end of their season at his summer home, "The Antlers" on Gage Lake in upper Michigan. Here Mr. Rooney, who is an ardent nature lover, owns several hundred acres of magnificent forest preserve, fronting for a mile on the lake shore. "The Antlers," a great log cabin, is one of the "show places" of the Lake Superior country. The massive fireplace of granite and porphyry is set with specimens of silver, copper, galena and iron ore and other sparkling minerals, and the rustic finish of the interior is done in 16 different kinds of wood, cut from the place, forming an interesting exhibit of the mineralogy and forestry of that section. The woods abound with deer, bear, wolves, wildcat and other wild animals, and the waters with wild fowl, bass and speckled trout.

The boys gather around the big open fireplace at night, pop corn and play games or listen to hunting stories from Mr. Rooney, who is an experienced hunter of large game. "The Antlers" and his Chicago studio being filled with trophies of his rifle. The boys are spent in fishing, boating, bathing, athletic sports and in exploring the streams and the fifty miles of forest shore in Mr. Rooney's private launch. The boys dress in their handsome uniforms and put on their old clothes and rough it to their heart's content.

CHECKERS PLEASING TO SMALL AUDIENCE

Excellent Company Seen in Great Racing Play Containing Many Interesting Phases of Human Life.

"Checkers" was produced before a small but enthusiastic audience last night at the Myers theatre. This is one of the most popular racing plays ever written and is now in its eighth season on the stage. Hobart Cavanaugh in the title role of Checkers, Graham as "Push" Miller, a race track tout, Florence Weston as Bert Barlow the heroine, and Carrie Lamont as Cynthia, were the stars.

This play depicts many phases of human life and the difference of its setting adds considerably to the difficulty of the role as well as to the interesting character of the story. The plot was concerned with the reforming of a race track gambler who completed his reformation by winning five thousand dollars at a race, with the gold coin his sweetheart had given him as a mascot and saving her father's bank with the money when it was threatened with a ruin. Checkers made a desperate resolve to give up the "ponies" and live straight but after several jobs had slipped from his grasp he was persuaded into betting his lucky piece on a sure thing and won. He returned to the village where his sweetheart lived just in time to use his money to save the bank of her father, thus winning the consent to their marriage. Through out the entire performance the actors were greeted with hearty applause and the enthusiasm at the end of the third act when the race had been won raised the curtain again and again. As a whole the play, both in the interpretation of the characters and the interesting character of the plot, was one of the best which has come to Janesville since the opening of the season.

GREATEST MEDICINE ON EARTH

A prominent citizen of Evansville, Ind., writes:—"I was ill for five months with a pulmonary trouble, and had the best of doctors. I had hemorrhages and was in a very bad way. Through the advice of a friend I tried Vinol, and I feel that it saved my life. It is all you recommend it to be. I believe it is the greatest medicine on earth. I have advised others to try Vinol, and they have had the same results." (Name furnished on request.)

We want every one in this vicinity who is troubled with chronic colds, coughs, or pulmonary troubles, to come and get a bottle of Vinol.

If it does not go to the seat of trouble, heal the inflammation and stop the cough, we will cheerfully return every cent paid us for it. This shows our faith, and proves that you take no chances.

Mr. Burnside is a skilled librettist and lyric writer, count having been last track of long as well as contributing the lyrics of "The Girl I Love." Mr. Burnside collaborated with C. V. YOUR UPSET, SOUR, GASSY STOMACH IS RELIEVED IN A FEW MINUTES

Take a Little Diaphepsin now and your Stomach will tell fine in five minutes.

Every family here ought to keep some Diaphepsin in the house as any one of you may have an attack of indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diaphepsin, and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with noxious odors.

Pape's Diaphepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery at any drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure almost any chronic case of Dyspepsia, indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

BITTER ROOT VALLEY

Unimproved land in the Bitter Root Valley can still be bought for less money than is asked in other valleys less fortunately situated and less perfectly adapted by nature for successful apple growing.

SOME OF THE ADVANTAGES:

Water is already upon the land.

The valley is the closest to the eastern markets of any of the apple valleys of the Pacific Northwest.

A railroad is in operation the length of the valley. Schools, churches, telephones, electric lights, rural free delivery and good roads promote a social life unknown in less favored communities.

There is an abundance of good drinking water, no sudden extremes of temperature, no killing frosts in the growing season.

Prices of undeveloped land range from $250.00 to $350.00 per acre, according to location. Detailed information will be furnished by

SOCIETY DEBATES ON RAISING MAINE

Forum Literary Society in Meeting
Last Evening Had Interesting Debate on Subject.

At the regular meeting of the Forum Literary Society, held last evening at the local high school, the raising of the "Maine" was discussed in a debate. "Resolved, That the raising of the Maine is a loss of time and money." Although the decision of the judges was two to one in favor of the negative, upheld by Volney Ransom, Carl Schoof and Carl Beck, still Stanley Metcalf ably defended the affirmative. Fred Cummings then spoke on "Italy's Social Cancer—the Camorra." "The World's Series" by Charles Norva proved a very interesting tale of baseball. Scientific topics were discussed by Stewart and Mead.

The Husk Lyceum literary society also met last evening at the high school and after their usual program, took into membership Thomas Foulkes, a senior, and Alva Krantz, a junior.

DID YOU EVER THINK OF THIS?

What would you do if the Gazette should stop printing advertising?

You never thought of that, did you? You take so many things for granted in this era of conveniences; you never reflect what would happen if all the telephone wires were cut; if street cars and trains stopped running; if the watermains were destroyed; if there were no newspapers.

Ours is the great age of time saving. You live more in a day than your grandmother lived in a week, because you can do more things in a day than she could do in seven.

If you were forced to make a trip to the grocer's every time you wished to order; if you had to visit every dry goods store in the city in order to find what you wanted to buy, and where you could buy it at the best price; if you were forced to go in person or send a messenger to scour the stores for some needed commodity whenever you required it you would do less in a year than you now accomplish in a month.

You have grown up in the "Great Hour of Action!" You have never missed the conveniences around you and therefore do not fully appreciate them. One can only measure truly through deprivation.

The advertising in The Gazette is of as much benefit to you as its news, its fiction, its departments. Advertising is your time-saver, a personal representative, visiting all the shops in the city, examining their wares, securing the lowest quotations on foodstuffs and household needs, clothes and daily necessities.

Advertising is the voice of commerce and invention and science, proclaiming their wares.

Without advertising in The Gazette, you would not know one-tenth as much as you do now about styles---or one-tenth as quickly.

You would not know of labor-saving devices, or the cheapening of home comforts.

You would wait for months until you personally saw these things or heard of them from some one else who saw them.

You would be ignorant of the real merit of the goods you buy. Advertising in the Gazette standardizes prices for you. It protects you at the dealers.

Because of advertising, all storekeepers know that they must sell at fair prices, since one glimpse through the columns of The Gazette gives you the current value on every type of merchandise.

Gazette advertising, in other words, presents the ruling quotations on utilities.

It saves time for you---saves money for you.

If The Gazette did not print advertising, you would wear yourself out roaming from shop to shop, until you found what you required.

But because The Gazette does print all the advertising of all the responsible and leading establishments of this city:

Because The Gazette does print the news of fashions and utilities and necessities---you can sit down after your day's work is done and within half an hour know exactly where to go and what to get and what to pay, assured in advance that you have invested your time and your money to the best advantage.

You could no more get along without the advertising in The Gazette than you could dispense with its news.

Advertising is news, valuable news, money making news.

Because of its advertising you could save the cost of The Gazette itself a dozen times---maybe a hundred times---in the course of a year.

And one thing more---perhaps the most important of all: You might as well have all the advertising as well as all the news. Read your Gazette every evening and get the best of both, and keep posted.

HEART AND HOME TALKS
BY BARBARA BOYD

Giving the Children a Psalm of Life.

THE school doors have opened, and every morning now, the children are trudging off to their lessons. And when the children are sent to school, many parents consider that they have performed their whole duty in this respect. Some there are to be sure who take an active interest in the children's lessons, watch their children's progress, and give heed to what they study to see if it is such as will develop and train them mentally. But many think all this is up to the teacher and the Board of Education. The mother sees that the children have a substantial lunch, and that their clothes are as good as possible, and then she considers her duty done. The father pays his school taxes and complacently considers his part of the performance ended.

But it is not enough to send the children to school. Parents should take a keen interest in what the children get there. Upon the sort of education a child receives, depends his whole future welfare, and there is more to education than a knowledge of arithmetic and spelling and geography. These are the foundations, but these should be used merely to give an outlook on life. And if this right outlook is not secured, the child's education has not been all it should be. If he comes from school knowing arithmetic and geography, but with no true knowledge of what awaits him in the world, nor with trained ability to handle life's problems, his education has only been partial.

Yet today teachers are so hurried and rushed with the material facts of education, that they have little time for this immaterial side. They must turn from geography to spelling, and from spelling to penmanship; and work as fast as they can, the hands of the clock turn faster. And the school day ends before they can find time to point from the actual facts of the studies in hand to their purposes, to draw the children's eyes from the pages of their text-books to the great scroll of life, and to show how these lessons now will help them to understand better the lessons life has for them to learn. They may wish to put the education of the school-room in its proper relation to the education of life, but they may not have the time to take from the actual tasks before them to do this. And so it goes on. And the children drone over spelling and grammar and penmanship, and burst out of school as out of prison.

It is when this higher, truer side of education is not given at school, that the school work should be supplemented at home. Some one has said, "Let the mother believe that the sound mind in the sound body is more to be valued than riches; that a keen eye for color and form, a steady hand to guide a pencil or tool, a mind alert, eager and reasonable; a heart that feels its brotherhood with all living, growing things; a free, frank speech; a generous nature, and an honest tongue are in themselves a Declaration of Independence and a Psalm of Life."

It is this side of education that the parents should bring to a child if he does not get it at school. Life will be to him then, as he goes forward into it, a joyous thing. He will be able to master its problems. He will have the key to its secrets.

And we owe it to the children to start them on life's up-hill road with their physical and mental muscles trained for the journey.

IDEAS FOR THE COOK.

When you have a little left-over chicken, chop it fine and mix with an equal quantity of boiled rice. Season with salt and pepper. Add a finely-chopped onion, a green pepper and a spring of parsley. Scald a loose head of cabbage and when the leaves are limp open the cabbage to the center. Put two tablespoonfuls of the mixture in the center, fold over the leaves, add another portion, and so on until you have stuffed the cabbage. Tie up in a piece of cheese cloth and put into a kettle of boiling water, salted. Cook until tender, drain in a colander and serve with a cream or hollandaise sauce.

Mock Cherry Pie.—Mix one and a half cups of cranberries, chopped, with a cupful of chopped raisins and a cup and a half of sugar. To a cupful of water add two tablespoonfuls of flour; add to the fruit and bake with an upper and under crust.

Salad of Peppers and Cream Cheese.—Select two large, sweet green peppers, cut off the stem end, remove seeds and wash in cold water; turn them upside down to drain. Wash and mix with two cream cheeses a few pecan meats and a little thick cream, salt and cayenne. Pack this carefully into the peppers and set away on ice until serving time. When ready to use, cut in slices a quarter of an inch thick. Serve two slices on a nest of lettuce, with a few slices of cucumber and mayonnaise for dressing.

Baked Hamburg With Bacon.—Put two or three slices of bacon in a baking dish, lay over this chopped meat that has been well seasoned with salt, mustard, pepper and onion juice. Put slices of bacon on top and bake in a moderate oven. When sufficiently baked, the time depending upon the amount, brown a tablespoonful of flour add the juice of a lemon and a tablespoonful of currant jelly. Pour this around the meat and bake ten minutes longer.

Deviled Chestnuts.—Shell and cut in thin slices a cup of chestnuts, fry until brown in butter, then season with tabasco sauce and salt.

INSPIRATION GIVEN
ONE HOUSEKEEPER

Letter of Thanks Received by the Feature Editor for Suggestion of Storing Away Supplies for the Winter.

This morning's mail brought the following letter from a woman reader of the Gazette which is published without any comment.

Your present contest for women readers started me thinking that I was losing an opportunity and not utilizing space in my column I might otherwise have filled with potatoes and other vegetables that would keep through the winter. I investigated and in consequence am making plans to have several bins made, small of course, for different varieties of vegetables, which I am going to store this fall for use during the winter.

I consulted with my grocer and vegetable man and found how I could store away my supplies so they would keep, and am going to do so. I also found that preserves keep better when placed in an enclosed pantry where the light does not reach them so I have had several hanging shelves put on the wall of my cellar with closed doors. If I had not read your article I would never have thought of it.

(Signed.)

The "Feature" editor wishes again to call attention to the present contest by suggesting that the writer of the above can utilize her experience in this contest by writing just what she did and entering the article in the contest.

Confine your articles to five hundred words each, write on one side of the paper only and have them in the hands of the "Feature" editor by November 15th. The following is the list of prizes offered for the five best papers.

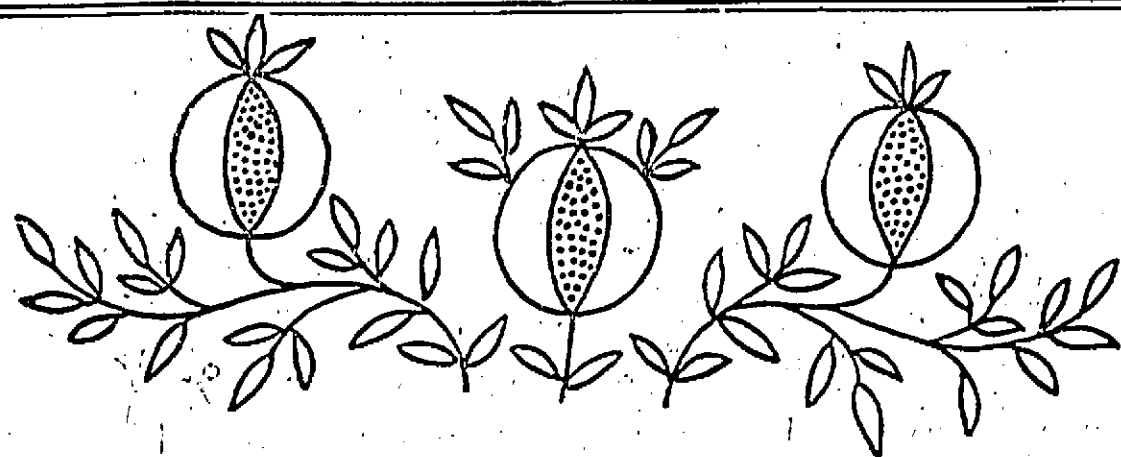

First Prize.—Set of Dishes.
Second Prize.—Half Dozen Silver Tea Spoons.
Third Prize.—Dance Courtesy Cook Book.

Fourth Prize.—Family Scales.
Fifth Prize.—Vacuum Bottle.

How Does the Rule Work?—A close observing fellow tells us that you can always spot a gentleman by the way he winds his watch. By the same token, are we enabled to identify a man who is not a gentleman by the way he hasn't any watch to wind?

A Trifle Miffed.

"I've been owing you a call for the past three years," began the lady of the first part. "Never mind about paying it," responded the lady of the second part. "The debt is outlawed now."

FOR SCARFS OR TOWEL ENDS.

Ends of towels and scarfs may be decorated in this design with excellent effect. The leaves and the outer divisions of the fruit are worked solid, and the center of the fruit is filled in with the sewing stitch or with French knots. The stems are worked in the outline stitch. Use mercerized cotton No. 25 for the embroidery.

DRESSY FROCK FOR MISS DAINTY.

For the tiny maid on dress-up occasions we show today a dainty frock of white China silk which is both pretty and serviceable, as with proper treatment it may be successfully laundered. The yoke is all-over lace (Irish, if expense is no object), edged with beading, through which ribbon is run. Below this is a full of silk and the collar is also formed by a full. Similar treatment is given the sleeves and the ends of the bodice and sleeves.

APPLYING MONODIET PRINCIPLE.

"I have been much benefited," says a Georgia minister, by the hints on simplifying the diet, "but I don't see how the monodiet can be applied to eggs or pie or strawberries." The understanding of the principles of the simple diet will be slow and its application slower. The ideal monodiet will be followed only by the invalid, for a short time, or by the athlete who wishes to gain the greatest efficiency, but the natural compromise, the eating of only two or three foods at a meal that combine well, can be adopted by anyone; e. g., fruits for breakfast or with green vegetables, bread with nuts (or meat if that is used) and cereals, for dinner; sugar fruits or cereals with milk in the evening. Eggs combine with toast, milk or rice; oil best with fruit or vegetables; these are fundamental ideas.

THE HERPICIDE GIRL

Advices Gentlemen.

At Mrs. Blank's reception I met a gentleman who fulfilled my ideal of a man in all but one particular. He had a good head, fine physique, perfect manners, was a most interesting personality, and bore himself with the distinguished air of a gentleman. His linen was immaculate and his clothes faultless as to cut and material. But all the pleasant first impression was ruined when I discovered the collar and shoulders of his dresscoat covered with loose hair and flakes of dandruff. To me this was an indication of personal carelessness, not to say uncleanness. I wanted to tell him to get a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide. This remarkable remedy would, in a short time remove every trace of dandruff from his head, stop his hair from falling and prevent him from becoming bald. I don't like baldheaded men; they look old whether they are or not. Dandruff is caused by a germ and Newbro's Herpicide kills that germ. The itching, which is so frightful with dandruff, stops almost instantly. Herpicide is the Original Honey that destroys dandruff. There is nothing in the world just like it, nothing that is "just as good."

One Dollar Size Bottles are guaranteed by all druggists to give satisfaction.

Applications obtained at the good barber shops.

Send 10c in postage for a sample bottle and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

DOES it not sometimes astonish you, to find how often bright people say or clever books express, some quaint little thought of your own that you never dared own up to?

I was walking home the other day from a gathering, at which one girl had kept us all amused and interested by the quaint and funny things she had said, and the original schemes had suggested.

My companion was a quiet girl, very conventional and not at all original or interesting.

"We were speaking of the afternoon's fun. 'Do you know,' she started me by breaking out, 'do you know, lots of those funny things that June said, I've thought of myself, but I never exactly dared to say them. And one thing she suggested, I've been on the point of suggesting myself a dozen times, but it seemed so kind of queer that I never did, and everybody was delighted with it when she did it.'"

I wonder if more of the difference than we realize between interesting, original folks and commonplace, uninteresting people isn't that the former express themselves freely, and the latter don't care to.

The natural explanation is that the commonplace folks have nothing to express, but I wonder if it may not be difference, rather than emptiness, that makes them what they are.

Of course, there must be much difference in mind between the genius and the commonplace person, but I doubt if it is as great as we think it.

Popular people, bright people, contrivance-wise people, are those who say and do the unexpected and interesting things they happen to think of.

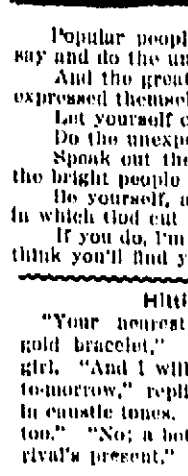

And the great folks of the world, the leaders, have been those who expressed themselves instead of trying to do just what everyone else did.

Let yourself out.

Do the unexpected and original things you think of. Speak out the quaint little ideas that come to you just as they come to the bright people you admire so much.

Be yourself, and cease foolishly trying to reshape the individual pattern in which God cut you, to the conventional pattern of commonplaceness.

If you do, I'm sure other people will find you more interesting and I really think you'll find yourself so.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

By H. L. RANN.

THE RURAL TELEPHONE.

One of the greatest blessings which 30 per cent dividends over conferred upon the farm home is the rural telephone. As a wall decoration a white oak telephone makes the framed marriage certificate look as cheap as the married man whose wife flags him in suspicious proximity to a blind pig. Without the telephone, life on the farm would be as lonely as the third party in a ham-mock. It is a pleasant divorcee, after the dinner dishes have been washed and the steel range given a massage, to clamp the receiver to an alert ear and inhale the conversation from neighbors who are discussing the price of store eggs or swapping time-tried croup remedies. It is said that more new-mown gossip floats over a rural telephone line than can be found anywhere else on earth outside of the weekly meeting of the W. C. T. U. In some respects the telephone is a dangerous thing. A woman of our acquaintance lost a large section of fire-proof religion upon hearing a wasp-winded apothecary who led the Junior league make a date over the phone with a preacher who wore tan shoes in the pulpit and whistled through his front teeth when he read the psalter. If lightning ever runs down all the overcasters on a party telephone line, the school district will look as if the bubonic plague had dropped off for a short visit with friends.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE RURAL TELEPHONE.

One of the greatest blessings which 30 per cent dividends over conferred upon the farm home is the rural telephone. As a wall decoration a white oak telephone makes the framed marriage certificate look as cheap as the married man whose wife flags him in suspicious proximity to a blind pig. Without the telephone, life on the farm would be as lonely as the third party in a ham-mock. It is a pleasant divorcee, after the dinner dishes have been washed and the steel range given a massage, to clamp the receiver to an alert ear and inhale the conversation from neighbors who are discussing the price of store eggs or swapping time-tried croup remedies. It is said that more new-mown gossip floats over a rural telephone line than can be found anywhere else on earth outside of the weekly meeting of the W. C. T. U. In some respects the telephone is a dangerous thing. A woman of our acquaintance lost a large section of fire-proof religion upon hearing a wasp-winded apothecary who led the Junior league make a date over the phone with a preacher who wore tan shoes in the pulpit and whistled through his front teeth when he read the psalter. UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams BY WALT MASON

The candidate goes forth to tell how well he did his duty; he held his of the passing well—his record is a beauty. He stands before a panting crowd and winds through wordy mazes, and in a raucous voice and loud he sings forth his own praises. No other man in all the world would dare to stand before you and prate of his own sterling worth and with a virtuous hero you. If I should stand around and boast about my big, house verses, you'd hand me what I need—a round, and sprinkle me with curses. You'd say: "The man who wants to charm should be a trifle modest, and this skate is a false alarm." A prophet stuffed with sawdust. The preacher doesn't tell the town how well he fills the pulpit; that sort of stuff we couldn't down—he knows we wouldn't gulp it. The doctor doesn't make the claim that he's the one physician who knows the way to carve your frame when you're in bad condition. The statesman in the only day who has the nerve to face us and boast himself for half a day and sing his charms and graces.

Wisconsin As a Barley Producing State

One-eighth of all the barley grown in the United States or approximately 15 million bushels, is produced in Wisconsin. And a very large proportion, possibly one-half of that amount, is grown in the northern and northwestern counties of the state. The soil, climate and rainfall are ideal for small grain production.
Wisconsin is also noted for its "Pohono" and large acreages are put in every year. One field near Stanley yielded its owners a net profit of $125 per acre.
Do not overlook the Out Crop, as well as Flax and Wheat. All small grains grow luxuriantly in the Stanley County, the country where we have no drought and no crop failures.
But away and far in advance of all other pursuits, is the dairy industry, which will yield a man the largest income he can get for his investment. The Stanley County is the home of the "RED CLOVER" and you cannot go wrong when you invest your money in this country.
Let us talk to you about this country. It is right here in your own state. You do not have to go away from home, out on the frontier, but go where you have good neighbors, schools, churches, good roads and good markets.
Land in this paradise can be bought at prices ranging from $12.50 to $20 per acre, and we can give you liberal terms on your purchase. See me today about this.

THE DOCTOR'S QUESTION.

Much Sickness Due to Bowel Disorders.
A doctor's first question when consulted by a patient is, "Are your bowels regular?" It knows that 98% of illness is attended with inactive bowels and torpid liver, and that this condition must be removed gently and thoroughly before health can be restored.
Rexall Orderlies are a positive, pleasant, and safe remedy for constipation and bowel disorders in general. We are so certain of their great curative value that we promise to return the purchaser's money in every case when they fail to produce entire satisfaction.
Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy, they act quietly, and aid in producing a soothing, strengthening, invigorating influence on the entire intestinal tract. They do not purge, grip, cause nausea, flatulence, excessive looseness, diarrhoea, or other annoying effects. They are especially good for children, weak persons, or old folks. Three sizes, 10c, 25c and 50c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store, The Smith Drug Co., 14 West Milwaukee St., Janesville, Wis.

The Girl from His Town

"Right! I don't blame you there, but, before you go, tell Lily you have lost your money, and see what she is made of. My dear chap—he changed his tone to one of affection—'don't be an ape; listen to me, for your father's sake; remember your whole life's happiness is in this game. Isn't it worth looking after?'"

"Not at the risk of hurting a woman's feelings," said the boy.

"How can it hurt her, my dear man, to tell her you are poor?"

"It's a lie, I'm not up to trying to her; I don't care to. And you mean to think that I told her I was busted she would throw me over?"

"Like a shot, my green young friend—like a shot."

"You haven't a very good opinion of women," Blair threw out with as near a sneer as his fine young face could express.

"No, not very," agreed the pool player, who had continued his shots with more or less sangfroid. When Galorey had run off his string of balls he said, looking up from the table: "But I've got a very good opinion of that 'nice girl' you told me of when you first came, and I wish to Heaven she had kept you in the states."

This caught the boy's attention as nothing else had. "There never was any such girl," he said slowly; "there never has been anywhere; I rather guess they don't grow. You have made me a fool in listening to you, Gordon, but as to playing any of those remedy tricks you suggest, they are not in my line. If she is marrying me for my money, why, she'll get it."

"You're a coward," said Galorey. "Like the rest of American husbands—all fool and no common sense. You want to make a mess of your life. You haven't the grit to get out of a bad job."

He spurred himself on and his weak face grew strong as he felt he was compelling the boy's attention. "If you only had half the character your father had, you wouldn't make a mistake like this; you wouldn't run blind into such a deal as this."

Blair was impressed by his host. Galorey was so deadly in earnest and so honest, and, as Dan's face grew set and hardened, his companion prayed for wisdom. "If I can only win through this without touching Lily hard," he thought, and as he waited Blair said:

"You haven't hesitated to call me names, Gordon. You're not my build or my age, and I can't trash you."

And his host said cheerfully: "Oh, yes, you can; come on and try," and, metaphorically speaking, Dan struck his first blow.

"They say—people have said to me—that you once cared for Lily yourself."

The Englishman's heavy eyelids did not flicker. "It's quite true."

Taken back by this frank response, Blair stammered: "Well, I guess that explains everything. It's not surprising that you should feel as you do. If you are jealous, I can forgive it a little bit, but it is low down to call a woman a fortune hunter."

Now Gordon Galorey's face changed and grew slightly white. "Don't make me angry, my dear chap," he said in a low tone; "I have said what I wanted to say. Now, go to the devil if you like and as soon as you like."

And the boy said hotly, stammering in his excitement:

"Not yet—not yet—not before I tell you what I think."

Gordon, with wonderful control of his own anger, met the boy's eyes, and said with great patience:

"No, don't, Dan; don't go on. There are many things in this affair that we can't touch upon. Let it drop. The right woman would make a ripping man of you, but you oughtn't to marry for ten years."

Dan took the hand which Galorey put out to him, and the Englishman said warmly: "My dear chap, I hope it will all come out right, from my heart."

Dan, who had regained his balance, said to his friend:

"I've been very angry at what you said, but you're the chap my father sent me to. There must be something back of this, and I'm going to find out what it is, and I'm going to take my own way to find out. I wouldn't give

"We did rather speak of it. But we shall do very well as we are. The program is full up and it's perfectly ripping as it stands."

"Yes, there's only just one thing the matter with it," the boy smiled good-naturedly, "and it's easy enough to run her in. I guess Miss Lane could be run in most anywhere on any program and not clear the house."

Lord Galorey, who knew nothing about the subject under discussion, said tactfully: "Why, of course, Letty Lane is perfectly charming, but you couldn't get her, my dear chap."

"I think we will let the thing stand as it is," said the duchess, going back to her desk and stirring her paper about. "It's really too late now, you know, Dan."

Unfrightened, but with a determination which Lord Galorey and the lady were far from guessing, Blair resumed tranquilly:

"Oh, I guess she'll come in all right, late as it is. We'll send word to her and fix it up."

The duchess turned to him, annoyed. "Oh, don't be a beastly bore, dear—you are not really serious."

Dan still smiled at her sweetly. "You bet your life I am, though, Lily."

She rang a bell at the side of her desk, and when the footman came in gave him the sheet of paper. "See that this is taken at once to the stationer."

"Hinter wait, Lily"—her fiancé extended his hand—"until the program is filled out the way it is going to stand." And Blair fixed his handsome eyes on his future wife. "Why, we got this thing up in a minute," he noted irreverently, "just so Miss Lane could sing at it."

"Nonsense," she cried, angry and powerless, "you ridiculous creature! Fancy me getting up a program for Letty Lane! Do tell Dan to stop bothering and fussing, Gordon. He's too ridiculous!"

"And Lord Galorey said: 'What is the row anyway?'"

"Why, I want Miss Lane to sing here on Sunday," Dan explained. . . .

"And I don't want her," finished the Duchess of Breakwater, who was evidently unwilling to force a scene before Lord Galorey. She handed the list to her servant, but Dan intercepted it.

"Don't send out that list, Lily, as it is."

He gave it back to her, and his tone was so cool, his expression so decided and quiet, that she was disarmed, and dismissed the servant, telling him to return when she should ring again.

Coloring with anger, she tapped the envelope against her brilliantly polished nails.

If she had been married to Blair she would have burst into a violent rage; if he had been put him in his place. Lord Galorey understood the contraction of her brows and lips as Dan reminded: "You promised she that you would have her, you know, Lily."

"Give in, Lily," Galorey advised, rising from the chair where he was lounging. "Give in gracefully."

And she turned on Galorey the anger which she dared not show the other man. But Dan interrupted her, explaining simply:

"I know the girl when she was a kid; she is from my old home, and I want Lily to ask her here to sing for us, and then to see if we can't do something to get her out of the state she is in."

Galorey repeated vaguely, "State?"

"Why, she's all run down, tired out; she's got no real friends in London." The other man flicked the ash from his cigarette and looked at Blair's boy through his monocle.

"And you thought that Lily might befriend her, old chap?"

"Yes," nodded Dan, "just give her a lift, you know."

appeared for a late morning call. "There, Dan," she said, holding out a bit of paper, "look at the list and the program, will you?"

"Sounds and reads all right," commented Dan, handing it on to Galorey. Besides being an artistic event, she intended that the concert should serve to present Dan to her special set. She now lit a cigarette and gave one to each of her friends, lighting the Englishman's herself.

"The best names in London," Lord Galorey said. "You see, Dan, we shall trot you out in a royal way. I hope you fully appreciate how swaggy this is to be."

Glancing at the list Blair remarked: "But I don't see Miss Lane's name?"

"Why should you?" the duchess answered sharply.

"Why, we planned all along that she was to sing," he returned.

She gave a long puff to her cigarette.

"We did rather speak of it. But we shall do very well as we are. The program is full up and it's perfectly ripping as it stands."

"Yes, there's only just one thing the matter with it," the boy smiled good-naturedly, "and it's easy enough to run her in. I guess Miss Lane could be run in most anywhere on any program and not clear the house."

"Yes," nodded Dan, "just give her a lift, you know."

Galorey nodded back, smiling gently. "I see, I see—a moral, spiritual lift? I see—I see." He glanced at the woman with his strange smile.

She put her cigarette down and seated herself, clasping her hands around her knees and looked at her fiancé.

"It's none of my business what Letty Lane's reputation is. I don't care, but you must understand one thing, Dan, I'm not a reformer, or a charitable institution, and if she comes here it's purely professional."

He took the subject as settled, and asked for a copy of the program and put it in his pocket. "I'll get the names of her songs from her and take the thing myself to Harrison's. And I'd better hustle, I guess; there's no time to lose between now and Sunday." And he went out triumphant.

Galorey remained, smoking, and the duchess continued her notes in silence, cooling down at her desk. Her companion knew her too well to speak to her until she had herself in hand, and when finally she took up her pen and turned about, she appeared conscious for the first of his presence.

"Here still!" she exclaimed.

"I thought I might do for a safety valve, Lily. You could let some of your anger out on me."

The duchess left her desk and came over to him.

"I expect you despise me thoroughly, don't you, Gordon?"

They had not been alone together since her engagement to Blair, for she had taken pains to avoid every opportunity for a tête-à-tête.

"Despise you?" he repeated gently. "It's awfully hard, isn't it, for a chap like me to despise anybody? We're none of us used to the best quality of behavior, you know, my dear girl."

"I don't Love That Boy, of Course. I'm Marrying Him for His Money."

"Don't talk rot, Gordon," she murmured.

"You didn't ask my advice," he continued, "but I don't hesitate to tell you that I have done everything I could to save the boy."

She accepted this philosophically. "Oh, I knew you would; I quite expected it, but—" and in the look she threw at him there was more liking than resentment—"I knew you, too; you couldn't go very far, my dear fellow."

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.

HOW THE DUTCHMEN THREW OUT THE DUKE.

In 1582 the Duke of Anjou, son of Henry III. of France, was appointed sovereign of the Netherlands, without the knowledge or consent of the people he was to govern. They resented the appointment, and prepared to resist him. But the wise duke thought he knew a thing or two, and resolved to make himself master of the situation at one bold stroke, by simultaneously seizing the principal cities in which French garrisons were located. He himself took charge of the seizure of Antwerp, and on the day appointed assembled his troops in the streets as if for review. At a given signal they fell on the burghers and began to set fire to the houses. But the plan did not work. The sturdy Dutchmen did not propose to be deprived of their liberty in this way. They put out the fires and furiously attacked the soldiers. When it was all over the duke and his men found themselves outside the city instead of in command of it.

Druggist's Favorite Kidney Remedy—Cured Himself.

Fifteen years ago I had an attack of acute kidney trouble. I consulted a physician who gave me medicine which only relieved me for a time. After discontinuing his medicine my trouble returned as severe as before.

Having heard of Swamp-Root I gave it a trial and can honestly state that three dollar bottles cured me, never having any sickness in fifteen years. I have sold Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root as a druggist for many years and can give it the very best of recommendations at all times.

You are at liberty to use this statement any time you wish.

Respectfully,

W. C. SUMMERS,

1213 Central Ave., Kansas City, Kans.

On this 11th day of August, 1909, personally appeared before me, W. C. Summers, who subscribed to the within statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

CHARLES WILSON,

Notary Public.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Janesville Gazette, Oct. 17, 1871.

We are told that the Broadhead people expect to see the grade of the S. R. V. R. R. completed through their town before the week closes.

The Wisconsin Central has reached Weyauwega, Waubesa county. The construction train of this road was the first train which ever crossed the boundaries of this county and its advent caused much excitement among the inhabitants.

At Oshkosh, Tuesday the tenth, when the wind was blowing fiercely, flakes of snow were seen to fall a few minutes, making the air white and giving the external world a very wintry appearance.

Rev. H. C. Tilton of Fond du Lac has been appointed by the M. E. conference as pastor of the Court Street church and Rev. S. Smith as pastor of the First M. E. church. Mr. Tilton formerly provided in the first church and is well and favorably known to most of our citizens.

The Clinton Gazette came to us this morning. It is published at Clinton Junction by H. F. Latta formerly of this city and T. J. Allen. Mr. Latta is a promising young writer and we doubt not the Gazette will thrive under his editorial management.

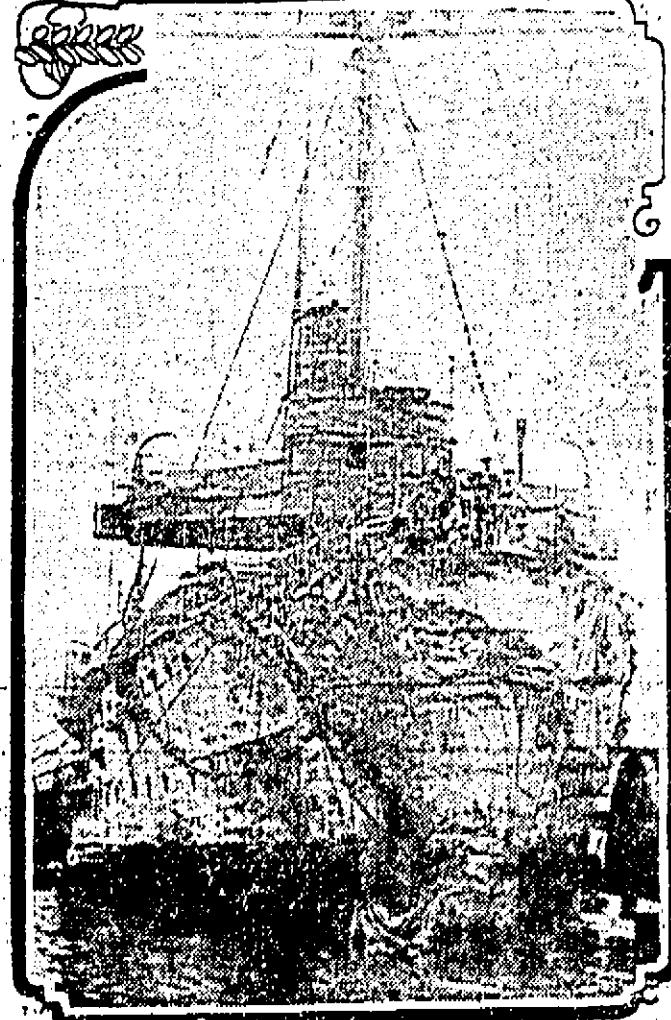

H. S. Shotton has opened his new dry goods store on the west side, but is not yet fully stocked, being delayed by the Chicago fire.

London, England, October 16.—Subscriptions to the Chicago relief fund were received at the Mansion House up to last night, and amounts to 23,000 pounds. A committee of American residents at London also received subscriptions and has made arrangements for the immediate dispatch of money or goods contributed.

"HIS NEXT CHANCE."

A life of safety must endure until the climate lets him skate.
On ice there's somewhat insecure.

FIRST VIEW OF ENGLISH BATTLESHIP DAMAGED IN COLLISION. English battleship "Hawke" showing a close view after her return into harbor. Note the twisted iron work of the bow. The collision occurred on the afternoon of Sept. 20th off Southampton, England. When the "Hawke" hit White Star liner "Olympic". Many hundreds of lives were endangered.

May Change Conditions.

A process has been discovered by a Shanghai scientist of softening and decumulating the ramie fiber, by which it becomes superior to cotton yarn and much like silk. A secret process does the work in ten minutes. This is likely to revolutionize the textile trade of China and to affect the United States cotton exports.

Confusion of Terms.

"Married life is frequently unhappy," mused the Cynical Philosopher, "because a woman can't always distinguish between a man's peace of mind and a piece of hers."

In Praise of the Novel.

Novels are sweets. All people with healthy literary appetites love them—almost all women; a vast number of clear, hard-headed men, judges, bishops, chancellors, mathematicians, are notorious novel-readers, as well as young boys and sweet girls, and their kind, tender mothers.—William Makepeace Thackeray.

The Philosopher of Folly.

"A good husband," says the philosopher of folly, "is one who can answer promptly and intelligently when his wife asks: 'What shall I get for dinner?'"

Need of Industrial Education.
In prevailing conditions, trade schools are an absolute necessity. Our boys cannot all become professional men. Many branches of commerce and industry are so specialized that training is absolutely necessary. Unless we provide this training, our schools will turn out a lot of idlers who have no future, unless their wealthy parents can stake money in some venture.—Horr Ullman, School Director, Berlin.

Shoplifters' Clever Device.
When a woman with an infant in her arms was detected in the act of stealing a shawl at a shop in Paris she pleaded that she was utterly destitute, and had taken the shawl to keep the baby warm. But the latter proved to be a hollow tin doll containing stolen articles.

Faded Flowers.
We would have no pity for the flowers that have faded, but we never know the fragrance of their bloom.—Arthur Lewis.
